SUE BELLE AINSLIE, President of the Senior Class.

HALLOWE'EN.

All day long, on the thirty-first of October, whenever any group of Sophomores met any number of Freshmen in the corridors or elsewhere, both wore a conscious,

"When shall we three meet again?
In thunder, lightning, or in rain," expression; and all day an atmosphere of subdued excitement, relieved by occasional bursts of delighted giggling, was apparent within the borders of Wellesley.

A competent Sophomore committee arranged the evening celebration in College Hall, a celebration in which the Freshmen, true to all expectations, took the leading part. Promptly after dinner some twenty-five members of 1906 were carefully escorted to the center, and put, with much expedition and éclat, "through Harriet." Following this ceremony came speeches, songs and funny stories, given by certain College Hall Freshmen, at the special request of the Sophomores. The company then adjourned to the Gymnasium, where huge pumpkin-lanterns presided over a true Hallowe'en scene. Pans of flour, apples hung on strings or bobbing in tubs of water, several long-haired fortune tellers—all the necessities were there, and decorations also, in the shape of apples and many-colored candies. When the playthings palled, dancing began, and at last came the feature of the evening—an impromptu entertainment by the Freshmen.

This began with a cake-walk, which 1906 performed in couples. It is needless to state that the applause was fully appreciative of the grace and finish of the performance. Speeches were then called for. The first was "On Going Through Harriet," to which Miss Edna Moore, 1906, responded eloquently for the space of one minute. Following her, Miss Thomas, 1906, spoke feelingly of "The Beauties of a Pumpkin Lantern." The Freshmen then sang a song to the Sophomores, a lyric bit, but of great beauty, entitled "Mary Had a Little Lamb." This they enjoyed so much that they refused to stop. At last, however, they were prevailed upon to sing some other original ballads of almost equal charm. Then, with hearty cheering for 1906, the party broke up and another College Hall Hallowe'en was over; one which passed without stain of crime or evil; at least, no open theft or bloodshed was known to occur.

All the College Houses entertained Freshmen from the village. At Stone Hall and the cottages plays were given. Wood was especially fortunate in presenting a play written by one of the house members, Ethel Waxham, 1905, with the following cast:

THE GOOSE GIRL.

Marion Palmer, the Goose Girl . . Anne Orr
The Geese
Mary Knight Ashbrook, who is taking Elocution and Debates . . E. F. Whidden
Kid Hughes } Rivals . . . Rowena Campbell
Jim Rawden } . . Frances Warren

Harvey Meredith, } . . . . . Alma Beemer
Muggins, Colored Valet Florence Bement
Kate, Mrs. Huntoon's Maid, Tusinelda Nusbichel

After the play came dancing and refreshments, and the usual general jollifications.

At Fiske two pantomines were given.

Young Lockinvar . . Louise Abbott
Fair Ellen . . . . Mary Emmet
Father . . . . Ruth Walcott
Bridegroom . . . . Helen Daniels
Henchmen, Ladies-in-Waiting.

Mediæval and Modern Ballad of "Mary Jane." (Shadow picture.)

Mary Jane . . Cora Butler
Benjamin . . . . Harriet Foss
Father . . . . Clara Chase
Sir Mortimer . . Margaret Ladd

Another play was Stone Hall's Celebration; a Farce called "A Bachelor's Banquet, or an Indigestible Romance."

Major Pomroy . . . . Theresa La Croix
Dick Foster . . . . . Leah Friend
Nat Stillman . . . . . Mary McIlwain
Mrs. Mortimer . . . . Mary McKinney
Dilla Mortimer . . . . Mary Wintringer
Constance Oldfield . . . . Olive Sullivan

One word in closing. The whole Hallowe'en this year deserves to be congratulated upon its dignity and restraint.

A College Calendar.

For the convenience of NEWS subscribers there will be found henceforth on the third page of each number a condensed calendar of college events, past, present and future, and the greatest care will be taken to keep unimpeachably accurate all announcements therein.

Important Notice.

To all generous-minded and journalistically inclined folks in this college, be they Faculty or students, the Board wishes to announce the proper channels for contributions to the NEWS. Frequent inquiries come to us as to the date before which items must be handed in each week and the persons to whom various kinds of news should be sent. We take this occasion to thank all those who are showing their interest by sending important items, and to beg the college at large to do that same service for their college weekly whenever odd bits of news come to notice. Such should be sent by Friday noon, in the following fashion:

College notes of all kinds,	E. D. Conover
Free Press articles,	C. S. More
Alumnæ notes,	Miss Shackford

President Hazard's Trip to New York.

The motive of Miss Hazard's recent trip to New York was attendance at the first meeting of the Institute for Social Service at the house of Miss Helen Miller Gould. The work of the Institute is to spread over a wide field and is of an economic and sociological nature, as its name implies, and is to be conducted through a small, centralized body of active members and an extensive associate membership. The president is the Hon. Josiah Strong and among the members are Presidents Hazard and Woolley, Miss Gould, Mr. Jacob Riis, and other prominent educators, sociologists and philanthropists.

Athletics.

Last week the preliminaries in basket-ball for Field Day were played. On Wednesday, October 29, 1903 played 1904 in a stiff, close game, the score standing 2-2 first half, and 3-2 second half in favor in 1903. On Thursday, 1905 played 1906, with a resulting score of 6-4 in favor of the Sophomores. On Friday, "second place" in basket-ball was decided by the 1904-1906 game, the result of which was 6-5 in favor of 1904.

Never before has there been so much high spirit shown on the Playstead as during these games. Considering the counter-attractions of class-meetings and of other Field Day sports at the same hour, the games were largely patronized and admirably supported by "rooters" from all four classes. The late afternoon was cold and windy, but the spectators warmed themselves by constant cheering and singing. This, as has of late become so laudable a custom, was in systematic form, certain girls being made responsible for lively songs and effective cheers; and consequently the encouragement given to the teams and the good-natured ridicule flung from class to class took on an order that, while allowing just as much racket, was infinitely more pleasant to all concerned. Particularly was this true on the afternoon of the Senior-Junior game, where the spirit manifested was such as to warm the cockles of athletic hearts. It is to be hoped, surely, that there will more often be such a lively turn-out and such enthusiastic demonstrations on days of games as met the teams last week. Let us have more noise on the Playstead and less in the Centre afterwards!

COLLEGE NOTES.

On Saturday, November 8, at 3.20, President Eliot of Harvard College, will speak to the students of Wellesley. His subject will be chosen from some of the themes which he has been discussing in the recent Connecticut and New Hampshire addresses on the "Public Schools of the Country."

Members of the class of 1903 will remember that President Eliot's first visit to Wellesley was at the inauguration of President Hazard, in their Freshman year. Ever since then, President Hazard has been trying to give us the pleasure of hearing him again, and at last has succeeded in making the necessary arrangements.

This is welcome news to every student at Wellesley, but especially to the Seniors, whose associations with President Eliot's first and last speech at Wellesley, are such never-to-be-forgotten ones.

COLLEGE NOTES.

Monday, October 27, The Philadelphia Club went to Sudbury in a barge to visit the "Wayside Inn," starting at 2, and returning by starlight. Dancing, singing and a jolly supper were among the pleasures of the trip.

About fifteen members of the club, several guests, and the chaperone, Miss Thompson, made up the party.

Tuesday, October 28, the Ohio Club had a social meeting in Stone Hall parlor at 7.30. There were over thirty persons present. Among them many new members from the Freshman class; games were played, and refreshments served late in the evening.

There was a meeting of the Debating Club at 7.15, in L. R. I., at which a committee was appointed to submit a Constitution, and the resulting Constitution was adopted. As soon as this has been acted on by the Faculty, the club will begin work. It was also decided to make Tuesday night the regular time for meeting.

Wednesday, October 29, President Hazard addressed the Freshman class in College Hall chapel at 4.15.

On Friday evening, October 31, Professor Macdougall gave a short organ recital on the new pipe organ at St. Andrew's Church, Wellesley. He was assisted by Miss Torrey of the Music Department.

Miss Elizabeth Lennox, 1902, visited her sister, Miss Lennox, 1904, of Waban, from October 24 to October 28.

Department Notices.

Miss Alice W. Wilcox, B. A., of Vassar College and for two years Fellow at Chicago University, has been appointed instructor in Zoology at Wellesley College. Miss Franc E. Foote, B. A., of Wellesley College, and lately graduate student at Columbia University, has also been appointed to a partial instructorship. These additions to the department are made necessary, partly by the increase in number of students and partly by the fact that Miss Mary Bowers, senior instructor in the department, is this year doing but half work.

Among these very learned girls
A frightful myth exists;
They fear a bogie, of whose crimes
They issue daily lists.

Her name is simple, but therein
Lies all the mystery;
Ten thoughtful minds could soon destroy
The omnipresent SHE.

Moral.

The only moral there can be
Is, not to call your teacher "she."

II

Won't the people who come out from Thursday-evening prayer-meeting, in the vicinity of eight P.M., try to remember that there are people living on the east corridor of College Hall, and on the same floor as the chapel? Promptly at the opening of the chapel door, at seven-forty-five, the roar begins, enlivened by songs, loud conversations carried on at great distances, and occasional shrieks as some friend is joyfully hailed. If you don't believe this, just spend a Thursday evening in one of the rooms on that corridor, and try to analyze the sounds. It is impossible to work, read or sleep for twenty minutes (by the clock) after the bell rings for the close of the meeting. Sometimes a philanthropic soul realizes the noise, and a piercing "Sh-sh" is heard, but the ensuing silence, though blissful, lasts only for a second.

The moral of this is that we don't need to wait two minutes after prayer-meeting is over to put into practice the good things we have heard expounded there. 1903.

III

Walking every day through the chilly corridors, it is a pity to pass anything that they have to give of interest, of colour. I wonder how many people stop in their passing to look at the bulletin boards on the fourth and second floors to the left of the elevator. There are notices of books and book people there, pictures and tales about pictures—things pleasant to remember. C. S. M.

IV

As a Senior, who, on account of her rank, enjoys the privilege of occasionally "making" an elevator on a busy morning, I should like, however, to say a word about reasonableness in elevator etiquette. It is certainly the fitting thing that Juniors and under-classmen should give place to Faculty and to Seniors, when the elevator is being filled up. But in leaving it, the observing of this order of precedence is sometimes a great inconvenience. For instance, as is usually the case, Faculty and Seniors are stowed away in the rear of the elevator, while members of the other classes are near the door. Now we are sure that, rather than have to push a way through a tightly packed crowd of under-classmen, (thus also causing great discomfort to the aforementioned under-classmen) the Faculty and Seniors would rather have custom laid aside, for the time, and would be glad and relieved if those nearest the door would get out of the elevator first. Those of the cap and gown make this suggestion for the convenience of all who patronize the elevator. 1903.

The New York College Settlement.

The Settlement's summer home at Mt. Joy was opened early in June, and until the middle of September, parties of young men, women and children were constantly coming and going. The accommodations were considerably increased by the addition of three camps, two of them belonging to the young men's clubs, and the third a camp for little boys. Six groups of about twelve boys occupied it during the summer.

The work of the Settlement in the city went on as usual. There were a number of day picnics, although the weather was not very favorable and the demand for outings not great. The yard was filled with children morning and afternoon, and the house was open every evening to the young men and women who came in often to sing or play ping-pong.

In a few days the regular activities of the winter will begin, but the happy summer days are not forgotten, for "what we did at Mt. Joy" forms the chief topic of conversation until they come again.

The Philadelphia College Settlement.

Last winter the Philadelphia College Settlement enlarged its work by the opening of Roosevelt House for residence. This house, formerly a tenement, is located at 502 S. Front street, in the midst of a typical river-front population. The predominating nationalities are Irish and Polish; saloons and sailors' boarding houses abound. The chief resident at Roosevelt House since its opening has been the College Settlement Probation Officer, Mrs. Montgomery. She came here in order to be near the center of her district, and to live in close contact with those under her care. But her work has extended beyond those placed by law under her influence. The neighborhood from the first regarded Roosevelt House as the exponent of law and order, and the preventive work accomplished both among adults and children has been large.

The past winter was largely spent in getting acquainted with the neighborhood. In this end weekly socials were held. Several organizations were also formed, a Stamp Savings Center, a working girls' club, a sewing class and several boys' clubs. One of the latter is called the Round Table Club, and has paid special attention to the King Arthur stories. These boys translate many of the old chivalrous terms into their own vernacular, for instance, knight is "guy," and when an interested hearer eagerly demands, "Well, what did that guy do next?" no disrespect is intended for the knightly hero of the tale. To the work of last year will be added this winter a library, and cooking classes, the latter made possible by the kindness of the Association of Collegiate Alumnæ.

The Christian Street house has been enlarged by the addition of the adjoining property, No. 429, formerly a rather dirty tenement house. This enlargement will make possible for the first time an open reading-room. The room is also to be used as a study place for school children, and help with lessons will be given when needed. Since many of the school children in our neighborhood belong to homes where no English is spoken, and where perhaps ten people are confined to one room, the need of such an evening study place is apparent.

Miss Alice Schuler, Wellesley, '96, spent a month at the Settlement this summer.

MARRIED.

On Wednesday, June 25, Miss Marian Peabody, '97, was married at Reading, Mass., to Mr. William Hauch, Harvard, '96. The bridesmaids were Miss Abby E. Wilson, '97 and Miss Helen W. Lincoln, '94—'94. Mr. and Mrs. Hauch are living in New York City.

FIELD DAY.

Three times three for 1902's Field Day!

Perfect weather, enthusiastic crowds, bright-colored flags, much cheering, and best of all, trained athletic events, made Field Day a huge success from start to finish. The sports began promptly at nine o'clock, with the 1903—1905 Basket-ball game. The events and their results were as follows:

Basket-ball, 9.00, A. M. 1903 vs. 1905. Winner, 1905, Score, 6—4.

Tennis, 10.15, A. M. 1903 vs. 1906. Winner, 1906.

60 yds. Low Hurdles, 10.30, A. M., 1903, 1904, 1905, 1906. Championship, 1905.

Relay Race, 11.00, A. M., 1903, 1904, 1905, 1906. Winner, 1906.

Hockey, 11.00, A. M., 1904 vs. 1905 vs. 1906. Winner, 1906.

Here the results end, on Monday noon, when this report goes to press. Golf, Hockey and Tennis have yet to be played off, so the championship cannot be decided until the latter part of the week. Full details and results of Field Day will appear in next week's COLLEGE NEWS.

The Philadelphia Wellesley Club.

The Philadelphia Wellesley Club held its first fall-meeting at the College Club, Saturday, October 18.

Twenty-eight members and some friends were present to welcome the new president, Miss Ruth Goodwin, '98. The chief amusement of the afternoon was the completing of "A Floral Romance." This guessing contest did much to make the meeting a social success. Each, according to the accuracy of her answers, received a "Course Card," a "Non-Credit Note," or a "Flunk Note."

A pleasant social half-hour was then spent, during which refreshments were served. '90

Musical and Theatrical Notes.

TREMONT THEATRE. E. S. Willard plays Louis N. Parker's "The Cardinal," Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings and Wednesday matinee, and "David Garrick," by T. W. Robertson, Wednesday evening, and Saturday matinee. This is Mr. Willard's last American tour for several years.

Papinta, the dancer at Keith's, is well worth seeing.

MUSIC HALL. Pietro Mascagni conducts his own operas. For months the music lovers of this section have been reading about the forthcoming engagement of Mascagni and his opera company. Mascagni's American tour has been, thus far, a most pronounced financial and artistic success. He has brought with him from Italy some of the most noted singers of the present age. The program is as follows:

Monday night, November 3, "Zanetto" and "Cavalleria Rusticana."

Tuesday night, November 4, "Iris," the Japanese opera.

Wednesday afternoon, November 5, "Zanetto," and "Cavalleria Rusticana."

Wednesday night, November 5, "Ratcliffe," presented in America for the first time. Mascagni considers it his best work.

CHICKERING HALL. Henry Lawrence Southwick announces his third annual course of interpretative recitals, on Friday evenings at 8 o'clock, to begin November 7.

PROGRAM.

November 7. Mrs. Jessie Eldridge Southwick, King John.

November 14. Mr. Howard Malcolm Ticknor, Richard II.

November 21. Mr. Walter Bradley Tripp, Henry IV, Part I.

November 28. Mr. George Riddle, Henry V.

December 5. Mr. Henry Lawrence Southwick, Richard III.

December 12. Miss Katherine Oliver.

Tickets for the course $5.00 and $4.00.

SYMPHONY HALL. Friday, P. M., November 7, at 2.30 o'clock, Song Recital by Madame Sembrich, direction, C. L. Graff Co.
